MATRICULATION: VC CAUTIONS AGAINST DEVIANT BEHAVIOURS AND EXAMINATION MISCONDUCT

The newly admitted undergraduate students over the weekend participated in the 2018/2019 combined matriculation ceremony involving Regular and the Continuing Education Programmes which held at the convocation arena.

Addressing the freshmen, the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Joseph Ahaneku, FAS warned them to steer clear of cultism, certificate forgery, examination malpractices and other deviant behaviors during their academic stint in the institution.

Prof. Ahaneku, who noted that payment of school fees and attendance of 75 per cent lectures in all courses remains crucial for successful graduation of students, stressed that deviant behavior such as examination malpractice, armed robbery, rape, among others would not be tolerated in the university. According to the Vice-Chancellor, such misconducts and crimes are punishable by suspension or outright expulsion from the University.

He enjoined the students to take their studies seriously, as well as avoid all associations that are capable of jeopardizing their future, even as he stressed that the university has provided the students with conducive environment for development of character and learning.

Disclosing that the institution enjoys full accreditations in all the 107 programmes across the 14 faculties in the University, Prof. Ahaneku added that the University have linkages with universities across the world to facilitate academic programmes development, teaching/research and staff/student exchange.

Highpoint of the matriculation ceremony was oath taking by the new students.

VC PLAYS HOST TO CHINESE AMBASSADOR TO NIGERIA, AS 48 BAG SCHOLARSHIP FROM THE EMBASSY

The Vice-Chancellor Professor Joseph Ahaneku, FAS recently received the Chinese Ambassador to Nigeria, His Excellency, Zhou Pingjian in his office.

The Ambassador was in the University for the October 1st Chinese Ambassador's Scholarship Award for excelling and indigent students. 48 students of the University benefitted from the scholarship. The students were drawn across various faculties in the University with 14 from the department of Chinese Studies.

Addressing the students, Ambassador Pingjian stated that 48 students were chosen significantly to mark 48th anniversary of the diplomatic relations between the Peoples Republic of China and Nigeria.

Presenting the cash prize of N100, 000 each alongside the Vice-Chancellor to the deserving students, the ambassador equally expressed hopes that the scholarship award would continue.

In his remarks, Prof. Ahaneku expressed gratitude to the Ambassador for his benevolence which according to him has given hopes to a lot of students. He charged the beneficiaries to be good ambassadors of the University and improve in their studies.

Recall, 47 students benefitted from the scholarship in 2018.

uBIOME AWARDS GRANT TO UNIZIK TO STUDY THE INFLUENCE OF PROBIOTICS ON THE URINARY TRACT MICROBIOME

uBiome has awarded microbiome research support in study design, planning, sample collection, and analysis to a team of researchers at Nnamdi Azikiwe University in Anambra State, Nigeria led by Dr. Kingsley C. Anukam, PhD, and supported by Dr. Nneka R. Agbokoba, PhD, of the Department of Medical Laboratory Sciences and Deputy Provost, College of Health Sciences. The study hopes to determine urinary tract microbiome compositions of culture-positive urine and culture-negative urine and evaluate whether oral consumption of probiotics designed for the prevention of urinary tract infections (UTIs) could be found in voided clean-catch midstream urine.

UTI is one of the most common conditions in clinical practice in the developing world, yet urine samples for culture procedures designed to detect fast-growing aerobic organisms may not detect other slow-growing anaerobic/fastidious bacteria. This may lead to clinicians diagnosing UTIs based solely on symptoms and prescribing unwarranted antibiotics. Researchers hope this study will improve our understanding of the diversity of bacteria that colonize the urinary tract in health and disease conditions.

Data collected from the study will include urine microbiome composition from uBiome's patented kits, the presence of nitrite, leucocytes, and bacteria in the clean-catch midstream urine, and type of clinically-tested probiotic (in warm dairy or water) given to study participants. "This is an exciting study which may contribute to a better understanding of the urinary tract microbiome and potentially improve the current treatment of UTIs," Dr. Jessica Richman, PhD, co-founder and CEO of uBiome, said. "We look forward to supporting Nnamdi Azikiwe University with this study."

Dr. Anukam is a visiting researcher at the Department of Medical Laboratory Sciences at Nnamdi Azikiwe University where he supervises postgraduate students working in the area of the human microbiome and probiotics. He is also the Research Coordinator at Saint Joseph's Health Care London in Ontario and the Research Unit Leader of the Academy of Sciences for the Developing World (TWAS). He was previously a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Medical Laboratory Sciences at the University of Benin in Nigeria. Dr. Anukam has over 50 peer-reviewed scientific publications and four refereed book chapters, and he is the editor of more than 30 journals.

About the grant, Dr. Anukam said, "uBiome has made the impossible, possible. With their state-of-the-art technology, students and academic staffs of the Department of Medical Laboratory Science left into the air with joy. uBiome has uplifted the standard of their research projects, which can compete with the rest of the international academic community as Nigeria has a track record of not providing funds for academic research. We look forward to receiving more assistance from uBiome in our future grant applications."

The grant was made possible through uBiome's Microbiome Grant Initiative. The Microbiome Grant Initiative has awarded millions of dollars in research support to hundreds of investigators around the world at renowned academic institutions and not-for-profit research organizations, including Harvard University, Stanford University, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), University of California, San Francisco, Oxford University, and the University of Sydney. Awards include patented microbiome sequencing kits, as well as research support in study design, planning, sample collection, and analysis. ## UNIZIK MARKS ORIENTATION FOR NEW ENTRANTS

The management of Nnamdi Azikiwe University, Awka recently, held an Orientation exercise for new entrants for the 2018/2019 academic session.

Addressing the new entrants, the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. Joseph E. Ahaneku, FAS spoke on the need that every child should have access to education and that has tilted to the favour of the 2018/2019 new entrants as this year's admission is the highest in the history of the institution. "This year's admission is the highest we've ever done as we believe that every child should be given access to education," he said.

Prof Ahaneku further enjoined the new students to make use of every window of opportunity which the University will avail them. On that note, the VC encouraged them to make use of the language advantage which the Confucius Institute provides. "The Confucius Institute has become a purveyor of visibility and mobility to Nigerian Youths." Prof Ahaneku also spoke on the need for good behaviour on the part of the students, mandating them that academic excellence ends in character and learning.

Other speakers who spoke during the Orientation Programme include the Special adviser to the VC on academic matters, Prof. Charles Esimone, who spoke on University Academic Regulations; the acting Registrar, Mrs. Uju Okonkwo, on Administrative Structure/Channels of Communication and Registration Guidelines; the University Bursar, Mrs. J.N. Ojukwu, on Financial Guidelines for Students; the Librarian, Rev. Prof. Obiora Cyril Nwosu, on the use of the University Library; among others.

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS FOR THE FULBRIGHT AFRICAN RESEARCH SCHOLAR PROGRAM

The Public Affairs Section of the U.S. Consulate General in Lagos is pleased to announce the annual call for applications for the Fulbright African Research Scholar Program (ARSP) for the 2020/2021 academic year. This program, funded by the United States Department of State offers senior faculty members from Nigerian universities, the opportunity to conduct research at U.S. institutions for a minimum of three (3) months and a maximum of nine (9) months. The selection process and final award of grants are extremely competitive.

The Fulbright African Research Scholar Program offers two categories of grants: research grants and program and curriculum development grants.

1. Research Grants: Awards of 3 to 9 months are offered under the research grants for Nigerian university faculty or research institute professionals to conduct research in any academic discipline at a U.S. academic or research institution beginning no earlier than August 2020 and no later than March 2021. Applicants must hold a doctorate or equivalent terminal degree in their fields. Preference will be given to individuals who have at least three years of university teaching experience and a productive scholarly record.
2. Program and Curriculum Development Grants: Awards of 3 to 5 months are offered under program and curriculum development grants for Nigerian university faculty or administrators to conduct research in any academic discipline at a U.S. academic or research institution beginning no earlier than August 2020 and no later than March 2021. Proposals should be linked to professional duties and demonstrate how the scholar will use the knowledge gained to develop new courses, curricula, or other academic programs at the home institution. These grants are designed for university faculty or administrators with less experience and who may not have had recent access to research or instructional developments in their disciplines. A doctorate degree is not required, but applicants must hold a minimum of a master's or equivalent graduate degree.

Grant Benefits: The grant covers the candidate's J-1 visa, round trip airfare to the U.S., a settling-in allowance, professional allowance, monthly stipend, housing allowance, books-and-supplies allowance, and computer allowance. The grant also covers basic university health insurance as a primary insurance coverage and the Fulbright ASPE health benefit as secondary coverage. Also, the grant covers travel of one dependent if he/she will stay with the grantee for at least 80% of the grant period. Moreover, it covers the dependent allowance.

Program Timeline: Application opens on February 1, 2019 and the strict deadline for submitting online applications is June 1, 2019. All supporting documents must be uploaded online by the application deadline to receive consideration.

Application and Instructions: Applications must be completed online at <https://apply.iie.org/fvsp2020>. Applicant should click on "create an account" to start a new application.

Eligibility Requirements:

1. An intended applicant must be a citizen of Nigeria or a permanent resident, and should hold a valid passport issued by the Nigerian government.
2. The ARSP is open to scholars in all disciplines and without regard to gender or age; however, proposals for clinical medical research involving patient contact cannot be approved under the Fulbright Program.
3. Applicants for research grants must hold a doctorate degree or equivalent terminal degree in their fields. Preference is given to individuals who have at least three years of university teaching experience and a productive scholarly record.
4. Applicants without doctorate degrees but who hold a master's or equivalent graduate degree are eligible in the program and curriculum development category.
5. Applications for doctoral dissertation research, postdoctoral research immediately following the completion of a doctorate degree, or general professional travel, are ineligible.
6. Preference will be given to candidates who have not previously received a Fulbright scholar grant.
7. Preference will be given to candidates who have had no experience or limited experience in the U.S.
8. Applicants must be in good health. Successful candidates will be asked to submit a Medical History and Examination Report.
9. Scholars must indicate the grant category for which they are applying (research grant or program and curriculum development grant).
10. Each application must include three letters of reference.
11. Letters of invitation from U.S. academic or research institutions are strongly encouraged but not required. Applicants unfamiliar with U.S. institutions may request that the Institute of International Education (IIE) identify suitable placements.
12. Although TOEFL exams are not required but applicants must have sufficient proficiency in English to carry out their research projects and collaborate effectively with colleagues.
13. Scholars who were unsuccessful in previous competitions may re-apply. Repeat applicants should revise their proposals, update curriculum vitae, and obtain current letters of reference.

We urge applicants to contact Fulbright alumni for guidance with the application process, if possible. Should you have questions regarding this program, please send an email to AygbusiCO@state.gov
